WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1. A system for processing reconciling information comprises:

an information processing system having a memory and a processor; means for entering first ordinal information and second ordinal information, each of said information including an ordinal interval; and means for reconciling said first information and said second ordinal information by constructing at least one list having a selected one of the ordinal intervals.